

growing problem of online adult piracy.

As Green pointed out to us, "The adult industry is finally taking notice of the enormous problem of content piracy. Our movement is not the only one out there, and I believe that combined with the efforts of PAK Group, Inc. (www.xbiz.com/news/89273), we can be a formidable force in dealing with this issue."

But it's not easy—content piracy is a big problem and it's a big complex job. Green went on to say, "This is going to take some time and patience. We are still killing movie links from 2005 in some cases, and there's a lot of catching up to do. These uploaders are vigilante, constantly switching blog hosts, uploading to mirrors, using link protection... The good news is that we are equally vigilante and make adaptations constantly."

Some high profile RYC clients have already discovered the cost-effectiveness of the program, including MelissaMoney, PerfectGonzo, BangBrosOnline, TushyCash, TNACash and many others. They didn't become so successful by throwing their money around or wasting it, you know?

Part of the Solution

According to the RYC website, "We fight illegal piracy at the source, the host, and rigorously pursue all hosted pirated media content. What is removed? We remove illegal copies of member videos, zip sets, archived picture sets, site zips and DVD rips. Content is removed through active forum searches and vigilante search engine sweeps."

Coverage includes file-sharing forums, search engines, blogs, image hosts, newsgroup services and tube sites. Always being tweaked, Remove Your Content has recently added Google search term infringement and removal as well as automated harvesting bots.

But don't take our word for it. A recent post by webmistress HotMelissa of MelissaMidwest.com on GoFuckYourself.com (www.gfy.com/showthread.php?t=797545) states, "I have had my content stolen and put up on sites so many times I can't keep up! I used to try to get it down myself, and then I hired an attorney. That got really expensive and didn't always work. Now I found a company that actually works!"

"Eric from RemoveYourContent.com has been able to get things down that I have been working on for months. The prices are really cheap and they are good, so if you have this problem give them a chance. It's time to shut down these assholes that make money off of our hard work."

She goes on to list just some of the potentially costly little problems that RYC can take care of for you:

- Rapid removal (usually 24-48 hours) of content from nearly all free file hosts such as Rapidshare, Megaupload, Megarotic, Filefactory, etc., and most others.
- Ability to defeat most URL stealth and masking services.
- Secure online reports detailing statistics for your campaign. Draw them in with a killer headline.
- Tube sites, newsgroup-to-Web and video blog removals. Use engaging subheads.
- Adhoc URL removal requests, forum support, secondary sweep campaigns and host reconciliation (ensures deletion on hosts).
- Over 400k file-sharing links removed since December, 2007.
- Active Yahoo/Google sweeps for illegally uploaded content.
- Top adult filesharing forum sweeps and thread monitoring by custom automated bots and human interface. Additional forums upon request and more added frequently.

And Melissa isn't the only fan. Content Producer Paul Markham commented at AskDamageX.com: "I signed up with Eric and within hours he had send out a lot of DMCAs and got a lot of my content removed from Rapidshare. You only win a war by fighting. Eric is an excellent soldier."

It appears to be well worth it, and Creator Eric Green points to results: "We are having an impact. RYC members are seeing a dramatic reduction in the availability of their member content online for free. Additionally, the frequency of "re-ups" and new uploads is down drastically because these guys know we will kill it within 24 hours. I don't care how fast a pirate's upload bit rate is, truth be known my mouse is faster...always."

Terms of Availability

RYC is offered for about the same monthly expense as securing someone to submit your galleries. The pricing is quite reasonable, but on a sliding scale based on site portfolio and overall traffic reach: "Due to the complexity of the work involved, membership fees are determined based on the number of sites you operate. Obviously the more sites in your portfolio or higher traffic reach you have, the more time it will take to research and remove stolen content."

"The standard membership, for most operations is $200. per month and includes up to five sites. Additional costs will be determined based on your overall program portfolio. Smaller programs with less than five sites may contact me for a custom quote designed to fit their budget. Preferred payment method is via epasspote or paypal. A secure tracking form with username and password is provided for each member account."
